It was shocking enough for Reverend Father Thomas Kelly to discover a community of vampires. Even more so was it that two colleagues, art historian Livia Pietro and scholar Spencer George, were among them. Now they're working together in New York City, where Livia is attending a conference on Native American art. But when Spencer is attacked in Central Park by a wolf, they're plunged into a world where Iroquois lore and the doctrines of the Catholic Church have collided, resulting in a catastrophic revelation.

A CROWD-PLEASING ADVENTURE FULL OF DANGER, SHAPE SHIFTERS, AND WERE SECRETS.

Defense attorney Amber Treganis has always been a reluctant Were Cougar, hesitant to change into her cat form during the three nights of the full moon and impatient with other Were creatures. But one night she begins to notice a change in her transformation. And when she hears of a doctor rumored to have discovered a cure, she suspects she may have been unknowingly treated with the experimental therapy. Now with the help of Adler, a Were Eagle active in community politics, Amber has to hunt down the secrets surrounding this cure, while staying off the radar of the FBI and CIA. As she begins to lose her Were senses, she realizes she should have been careful what she wished for...

A NEW OMNIBUS CONTAINING FORESTS OF THE NIGHT AND FEARFUL SYMMETRIES.

Featuring a new Introduction by the author, this omnibus edition combines the first and fourth novels in this genre-bending series, focusing on the shared protagonist of both books, Nohar Rajasthan. Nohar is a humanoid of tiger eeking his living as a private eye. It's a career choice that could soon prove the death of him.

Praise for the series:

"If any book was meant to be made into an action-adventure movie, this is it."

—Locus

"A rousing adventure, skillfully told."

"Here is the printed-page equivalent of an action movie: a novel as vivid as a cinema blockbuster loaded with high-budget special effects."

—The New York Review of Science Fiction
